

NEWS RELEASE

Stinger Industries Announces Name Change

(MURFREESBORO, TENNESSEE, FEBRUARY, 2005) Stinger Industries announced that as of today, it will do business as Stinger Medical. Stinger has developed products for the healthcare industry for more than ten years and is best known as the provider of the Levitator™ mobile workstation. CEO and company founder, Gary Coonan chose the name Stinger Medical to better reflect the company's continuing commitment to providing quality mobile solutions and its new dedication to providing medical technologies to the healthcare industry.

Stinger Medical is broadening and improving its product offerings to meet the needs of its healthcare customers. The transition began in the fall of 2004 with the acquisition of the Seattle based medical technology company, Integriti systems, the makers of the integriti® automated vital signs solution. In addition to the integriti®, Stinger Medical will introduce two new mobile workstation lines, a new power system, improved warranty, installation and on-site care services, as well as an expanded sales force. The company will still offer their popular Levitator line of workstations with the patented Feather Touch™ positioning system as well as arms and mounts and their medical grade All-in-One computers.
